

VOTED HUB ASSET · TNN RETREAT

STORY, MEMORY & IDENTITY

The World Café named five clusters on this board. The dot voting concentrated almost entirely on one, with a single dot on a second. All five are presented below as candidate dimensions, ranked by vote, so you can pull your top 3 to 5.

PULL FROM HERE TOP DIMENSIONS (VOTED)

Five café-named clusters, ranked by orange-dot count. The title is the filing handle; the line under it is the concrete, notice-if-missing dimension you lift. Counts are provisional, from the photos.

1

HOLDING COMPLEXITY

People can tell a complicated, many-sided story of the neighborhood, including who started it, without flattening it to one clean version.

~7 dots · top

2

HELD BY THE WHOLE

Kids and elders, not just a small group, can tell the neighborhood's story, and neighbors make its name together.

1 dot

3

FULL IDENTITY WITHIN DIVERSITY

Newcomers and long-time residents claim the same neighborhood identity, one big enough for everyone and specific enough to belong to.

4

STEWARDED THROUGH PRACTICE

Specific people are known for keeping and sharing the neighborhood's stories, including the overlooked ones, and they do it regularly.

5

AFFECTION FOR PLACE

People speak about the place with affection, not just as where they happen to live.

The same five clusters around the component. Node size is the vote count, so the voting result reads at a glance: Holding Complexity is the clear center of gravity, with Held by the Whole a distant second and the other three named but unvoted.

THE CLUSTERS IN DETAIL

01

● ~7 votes

HOLDING COMPLEXITY

The runaway winner. The neighborhood can hold space for difference, paradox, and the dynamism of its complex and sometimes contradictory stories, rather than flattening them into one account.

hold space for difference and dynamism memory and stories are complex, contain multitudes and paradox

people have a complicated story of the neighborhood

how the neighborhood came to be, and who started it

attention to indigenous stories of a place

stories not separated from the built environment (food, water, economy)

02

● 1 vote

HELD BY THE WHOLE

Memory and story belong to the whole of a neighborhood, not just a small group, and explicitly include kids and elders. Neighbors make a name and identity together.

held by the whole, not a small group

kids and elders

neighbors create a name or identity together

03

FULL IDENTITY WITHIN DIVERSITY

A shared identity big enough for everyone and specific enough to belong to. It holds diversity rather than erasing it.

shared identity

big enough for all, specific enough for belonging

full identity within diversity

STEWARDED THROUGH PRACTICE

Story is held by named practices and named people. Who tells, shares, and stewards the stories, including the ones the neighborhood has overlooked.

name the practices that help us hold and share stories well

name the people who steward those practices

who can share the stories of place we have overlooked

05

AFFECTION FOR PLACE

Deep emotional attachment. Caring about the place is what makes anyone care about its story, and it lowers the fear of arriving.

affection for this place

caring about place is needed to care about story

people won't be afraid to come to my neighborhood

OPEN, AND WORTH CARRYING FORWARD

T1

WHOSE STORIES GET HELD

The café circled the question in red: who can tell and steward the stories of place we have overlooked. Equity of memory, not just its abundance, is the live issue.

IS THIS "CULTURE"?

The café tagged the whole component with a question mark, unsure whether story, memory, and identity is better named culture. A naming decision left open.

T3

THE WHO / WHAT / CREATES LENS

The café sorted clusters by question word: who holds and stewards, what the qualities are, and what it creates, namely deep emotion. A useful structure to bring into tomorrow's build.

T4

PRACTICE TENDS AFFECTION TENDS THE WHOLE

A bridging note links practices to affection to the whole, which suggests these clusters may be a chain rather than five separate things. Worth testing when you set enabling conditions.

CONNECTING FOR CHANGE

Story, Memory & Identity · voted hub asset · v0.1.1

Provisional. Built from session photos and dot voting, tallied at the cluster level. Dot counts are read from the photos and will be reconciled against David's hand transcription to produce the final asset.
